

Chamber's funding assured

The government moved quickly following the administrative tribunal's decision in November to rule illegal the obligation of all companies to be taxed on their profits to finance the Chambers of Commerce and Métiers. The system, in existence for many decades, was successfully challenged by an investment company as having an insufficiently secure legal base. Within weeks, the government rushed through a reform which has since plugged this gap.